Small quake at great depth (16.6 Km) on the eastern margin of the Rome Trough (red dashed line in the figure in the upper left). No “felt” reports five hours after the quake. Despite the “generic” explanation of induced quakes for the eastern US, this event is too deep and too distant from any human activity.